Save that egg quality whether you take eggs to the market, or bring them home from the neighborhood market. You can break eggs without cracking the shell. Jarring or jouncing eggs is one way of breaking down in quality. Even if the jarring does not crack or break the shell, it may cause the white of the egg to lose its firm, upstanding quality. Commercial shippers have learned that it pays not only to keep eggs cold, but also to hold them as firmly as possible in transit. Eggs need to be packed in specially constructed containers, cases are stacked lightly; when loading trucks or cars.

Have a care at home — store eggs in the cooler part of the refrigerator, above freezing temperature, of course. About 45 degrees F. is good for keeping quality. Store eggs large end up, it helps to keep the yolks well centered. A clean, covered container is best to reduce loss of moisture through the pores of the shells and to prevent eggs from absorbing off-flavors and odors.

Do you buy right but eat poor? The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics reports the findings of a recent study of food habits of teen-agers. Though teen-agers are noted for their interest in science, they seem generally to have overlooked the subject that could be valuable to them — nutrition.

Scientific eating study may not sound as glamorous as the science of the stars, but it gives information of what food can do for the active teen-ager, the foods needed at the age of rapid growth and development. The study showed that teen-agers generally tend to have poorer diets than younger children, adolescent girls far worse than boys. For shame — that shouldn't be so!

What was missing and how does this compare with the teen-agers in your family? In Maine, the study showed that data of both girls and boys were split to run low in vitamin C and calcium. Girls were also low in iron and generally had less of several other important nutrients than boys. More fresh fruits and vegetables and milk would have helped in all cases.

In Chicago, the study showed that high school children had less milk and fewer servings of fruits, vegetables, meat, poultry and eggs than elementary school children.

Tenth graders in a New York study had less milk and less needed for their age and fourth graders had less milk and fewer fruits and vegetables high in vitamin C. Among 30,000 school children in another study, those ages 12-17 years came out shortest on milk, green and yellow

FEEDER'S NOTEBOOK

by Emmett Milchen
Graduate Feeding Advisor

FEEDLOT CATTLE ARE STILL PROFITABLE

The outlook for the efficient feeder is very good. With full employment and sizeable pay checks likely to continue, consumers will buy, and have money to pay for the beef they want.

Good business practice demands that production costs be cut in every way possible. Maximum, economical gains are "musts" with feeder cattle but it probably won't pay to feed for maximum finish. If the price differential isn't too great, it is usually safer to buy smaller cattle because you don't have to put on so many pounds. Too, smaller cattle will put on gains cheaper and hence if there should be lots of soft corn and a rush to buy cattle, heavier cattle could be quite profitable. Making full use of protein supplement will help to lose gains, as well as save corn. Younger cattle will need more protein supplement with their grain. Here is a good rule — 100 pounds of supplement should be fed with 400 pounds of grain to 400-pound cattle. 600-pound cattle will need 100 pounds of supplement in 600 pounds of grain. For cattle 800-pounds and over, feed 100 pounds with 800 pounds of grain.

Profitwise, this looks like a year when the weight gain will be more important than margins over feeder cattle costs. Ceiling prices may hold the selling price of finished cattle very low to feeder cattle costs. However, the feeder who feeds and manages well has a good chance for satisfactory profits.

Elaine Jenkins, Linda Tyler, Messrs. Donnie Fisher, Mickey Flater, Wayne Jenkins, Ricky Hardin and the three children, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Fisher are keeping.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kaufman, Irene, David and Stephen spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Farmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kaufman and Charlean were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Farmer, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kaufman, Louisville, entertained with a dinner Sunday in honor of their birthdays and Joyce Kaufman's and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kaufman's sixth wedding anniversary. Those who enjoyed the day were: Mr. and Mrs. Kinberger, Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kaufman, Mrs. Fred Boss, Mrs. Carrie Boss, Misses Joyce Kinberger and Joyce Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Farmer called on Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Tracy, Saturday night.

Mrs. Oscar Kaufman made a short call on Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Spencer, Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Spencer attended the State Fair, Sunday night.

We were shocked to learn of the death of Mr. John F. Lambert, who passed away at the Kentucky Baptist Hospital. Heartfelt sympathy is extended to his wife, sisters, and grandchildren.

Here's FAST, CLEAN Mowing Year after Year

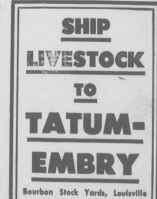

JOHN DEERE No. 5 MOWER

Everything that counts for fast, clean mowing... for downright dependability is yours in a John Deere No. 5 Mower.

First choice of farmers everywhere, the No. 5 mows 25 to 35 acres a day... cuts clean in any crop. It's a tractor mower through and through... geared for tractor speed and power... simple, durable, and easy to put on and take off.

Cutting parts are extra tough to stay sharp longer, and safeguarded against breakage by a safety spring release that allows the cutter bar to swing back when it hits an obstruction... by a slip clutch to protect parts in case knife is clogged. By means of an easily-adjusted eccentric, the outer end of the cutter bar can be brought ahead to take up lag, thus making it easy to keep knife and pluma in line over the years. See us for details.

CHRISTIAN UNITY

"That they all may be one, as thou, Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." (John 17:21)

We come now, not with a "higher than thou" attitude but with earnest and humble hearts, to study this subject which is near to the hearts of us all. These words, uttered by the Lord in prayer almost 2000 years ago, are the deepest desire of His heart that His disciples might all be one. The conversion of the world depends upon this unity. Almost everyone will agree that the divisions of denominations in Christendom are a gross violation of the thought and spirit of this prayer. Creeds and doctrines of men are the causes of these divisions. Unity among the believers in Christ is the first and most important step in the fulfillment of this prayer. Some may argue that it is impossible to have such unity, but they have not stood in the light of His love. His apostles taught unity, prayed for it, and commanded it.

But let us suppose the apostles Paul were to return from the dead and preach in this city; and all of us believers in Christ were to be gathered there. We might all gladly carry with us a New Testament in which certain false apostles' epistles written by the
